SMOKEY THE BEAR and SPARKY THE FIREDOG served to illustrate a recent fire prevention program at South Fulton elementary school as part of a continuing public education program by the South Fulton government. 1966 fire alarms were down 20% over the previous year, city manager Henry Dunn stated, and building fires dropped around 50%. Incidentally, Smokey was played by Police officer Cleo McClanahan, and Sparky by Lori Dunn, a first-grader at South Fulton.

Industrial Clinic Viewed As Treatment Intended To Cure Our Local Ailments

A News Analysis

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary describes the word clinic as "the instruction of a class by treatment of patients in the presence of others."

No better word could be found to describe the meeting planned in the twin cities for February 6 when a team of industrial "diagnosticians" will come here to examine the efforts of our local Chamber of Commerce to land new industries for our energetic and progressive community.

It has become increasingly more obvious in recent years that the examination is vitally needed. For in spite of the indefatigable efforts made by a group of citizens to bring industry here, the treatment has produced little cure for the growing concern among our business people that some ingredient apparently is missing in the formula given to entice industrialists to what most of us think is a robust area for economic development.

Yet, the industrial clinic, proposed by Kentucky Commissioner of Commerce Katherine Peden, is strikingly comparable to a medical clinic. There is a savage reluctance among a few of the "patients" to take the examination for fear it might reveal a civic ailment that the patients refuse to accept because it might disturb the status quo.

There may be some thinking that perhaps the industrial clinic ought to be delayed for awhile. That's understandable. It is much like the individual who knows quite well some physical symptoms may be a harbinger to a serious illness, yet wards off the diagnosis for fear the prognosis may produce a termination of the individual's closely controlled activities. In medicine, the longer the patient delays the examination the more acute the ailment becomes, with the result that the patient is soon the subject for an obituary.

And so it is with our efforts to bring industry to our twin cities. It is possible that our present treatment of the matter is what the industrial doctor ordered, with the cure a slow process.

But on the other hand the "prescriptions" now being given for our industrial wellbeing may be ill advised, even more carelessly administered. There are scarcely any doctors who would keep a patient on the same prescription for as long as eight years without even a hint of possible recovery. It's been about that long since we've had a new industry in the twin cities.

Just as a medical doctor would order a complete examination of his patient, so are the industrial agents of Kentucky and Tennessee seeking an examination, in the presence of others, to pin-point our recent failures to attract industry to this community.

Having been notified last Wednesday that such a clinic might aid our industrial procurement ailments, Harold Henderson, the progressive president of the Fulton-South Fulton Chamber of Commerce accepted the offer of Commissioner Peden and has notified her that he is asking ALL INTERESTED CITIZENS to attend the clinic, fully prepared to offer remedies, no matter how distasteful, to seek a cure for our failures to bring new payrolls, new families, new vigor to our economic and civic environment.

The people of Fulton should be honored that it is the first community in Kentucky to have the industrial clinic. It is a new concept in industrial procurement for, as Commissioner Peden said, "the people of Fulton are ready for an industry, they deserve one, and we want to do everything we can to get it for them."

Coming to Fulton on February sixth with Commissioner Peden are representatives of the Illinois Central Railroad, Texas Gas Transmission Company, Southwest Kentucky Industrial Agency, West Kentucky Gas Company, The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and other prestigious, allied agencies.

How can we possibly fail to accomplish what we have tried years to attain! And at no expense to us.

Others are planned, at the request of the communities themselves, at Pineville, Ashland, Owensboro, Harlan, Covington, Russellville, Maysville, to name just a few.

But bear in mind that Fulton is first... first because Commissioner Peden feels that we have a lot to offer and "we are ready."

If we have no problems then we'll get an industry by and by. If we do have problems, let's face up to them.

We'll stay right where we are forever, if we sit around blaming our failures on everybody but ourselves.

Brenda McBride Named Fulton High Crocker's Homemaking Of Tomorrow

Brenda McBride, by finishing first in a written homemaking knowledge and attitude examination for senior girls December 6, became Fulton High School's 1967 Betty Crocker Homemaking Of Tomorrow.

Brenda is now eligible for possible state and national scholarship awards. Her test also earned her a specially designed silver charm from General Mills, sponsor of the Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaking Of Tomorrow.

A state Homemaking Of Tomorrow runner-up will be selected from the winners of all schools in the state, with the former receiving a $1,500 college scholarship; her school will be given a complete set of Encyclopaedia Britannica by Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc. The runner-up will be awarded a $500 educational grant.

The Betty Crocker Homemaking Of Tomorrow from this state, together with those from all other states and the District of Columbia, each accompanied by her school advisor, will join in an expense paid educational tour of Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D. C., next spring.

The national winner—the 1967 All-American Homemaking Of Tomorrow—will be announced at a dinner in Williamsburg. She will be chosen from the state winners on the basis of original test score plus personal observation and interviews during the tour. Her reward will be an increase in her scholarship to $5,000. Second, third, and fourth ranking national winners will have their original scholarship grants increased to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

This is the 13th year of the Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaking Of Tomorrow, initiated in 1954-55 by General Mills to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career. More than 5,000,000 senior girls have participated in the Search since its inception, and 1,256 winners will have earned scholarships totaling $1,371,500 at the conclusion of the current program.

The 581,334 girls and 14,753 schools registering for the 1967 Search established a new record for the program.

Notebook Filled With This 'n That From Here 'n There

You'd better believe that twin city people have a heart of gold and smile to match.

Wednesday morning there were 37 women at Ruby McDade's home who volunteered to do hostess duty at the three local nursing homes and two hospitals. There were many others who couldn't make the meeting but called to "count on them." Forty-eight persons are needed to start the program of dispensing cheer to the patients and shut-ins, but there ought to be at least a dozen more in reserve in the event illness or other commitments prohibit the regular volunteers from doing their "duty" hours.

I'm going to be on a stand-by basis. I think I'll enjoy it so much I'll just leave off something else to go full time. How about you? Call Ruby if you want to take on the volunteer duty on this basis too.

There are times when Americans, travelling from one region of the Nation to another, feel almost like foreigners when they try to understand the vernacular of the particular section.

Perhaps nobody knows this more than Paul who related an incident that occurred to him when he moved from Effingham, Illinois to Gallatin, Tenn. in the early days of his newspaper career. For instance, a salesman, you remember, in these parts was referred to as a drummer.

Paul says that he went to a rooming house in Gallatin to seek living quarters where the land-lady told him she had one room left, and it was next to a "drummer."

To which Paul replied: "That's nice, because I'm a piano player."

Visiting with Carlos and Kathryn Lannom in Nashville this past weekend, Kathryn told us a similar story of mistaken understanding that concerned her three little girls, when they were quite young.

Kathryn was working for the Stinson Lumber Company. One afternoon the youngsters went by her office to see her. Told by a fellow employee what Kathryn was doing, the children turned around with nary a word and walked out of the door.

Jo's
Notebook

Getting home Kathryn asked them where they had been and why they didn't come by her office as she instructed them to. Whereupon the children all looked startled and hurt, but then added they went to the postoffice to look for her.

With this answer Kathryn got curious as to why they went to the postoffice and queried them further.

"Well," the little ones blurted out, "the man said you were taking a letter."

I wish folks would send us short, short stories to publish of similar incidents. They surely bring us a smile, besides being interesting reading too.

Besides being just plum delightful and entertaining, the visit with the Lannoms reminded us that time is marching on. It's hard to believe that those three little girls, whom we have known since they were almost infants, are now grown, two of them married—each with a grand-child for the proud Lannoms; another is teaching school.

Phyllis, now Mrs. David Hancock is living in Bowling Green. The Hancocks have a two-year old son, George.

Bobbie is in Florida married (I only know that her husband's first name is Allen.) They too have a young son.

Judy is teaching in Florida. Kathryn's mother, Mrs. Than Rogers, divides her home with Phyllis, Bobbie, Judy and Kathryn... and you'd better believe she's enjoying every living breathing minute of it.

In The Mail!

The week-end mail brought letters from two of our favorite friends in Ecuador. One was from Clodeveo Gonzalez, the talented organist who came to the Banana Festival in 1965 as an artist in his own right and to be accompanied for the equally talented ballerina, Patricia Aulestria.

Besides sending us greetings of the season Clodeveo, a writer as well as a musician was happy to send us the success of his efforts in a modern concept of teaching the piano. It appears so simple that I feel that I can take the pamphlet and start playing Chopin in just a few minutes.

The pamphlet Clodeveo sent to us said:

"The CGB Musical System precisely constitutes a radical change in the system of the keys and in the theory and writing of music. Moreover, it is a complete system because it can be applied in an easy way to the study of music in deep shade from the print for solid-color draperies, headboard or screen. Pick one bright color from the print as your spicy accent, and use it for chairs, pillows or a dressing-table bench. Then use the print for the bedspread, which is a main color area.

Actually, a Nettle Creek print can plan your whole bedroom, as illustrated by Mr. Cano in the picture above. The PEONY bedspread is in gold with olive and aqua. The window shade matches the bedspread; tufted headboard and draperies pick up the olive of the print; chair, screen and carpet are deep gold; walls are pale gold; lamps, pillows and flowers add aqua accents.

It's easy to apply a color plan to your own bedroom, just by seeing the Nettle Creek collection of custom-made bedspreads, draperies, curtains, window shades, headboards and boudoir chairs—all in prints and coordinated solid colors—at your favorite home furnishings store.

Parents being people, they're entitled to a room to relax in—a tastefully decorated bedroom that is also a sitting room in which to enjoy peace and privacy away from toddlers and teens.

Besides a people-size bed, the room should include a pair of comfortable chairs for reading or watching TV; a small table for breakfast coffee and nighttime snacks; a desk or secretary for writing letters and paying bills.

Too many bedrooms look like furniture showrooms, their walls lined with dressers and chests that are practical for storage but not very warm to live with. Nettle Creek stylist Pedro Cano offers a solution: hide the wood, and decorate with fabric and color instead!

Start with a style you like. Whether it's Victorian, French Provincial or Modern, you can generally capture its mood with fabrics, and save money on furniture.

Pick a favorite color. Having the proper color on walls and floor is worth your investment in painting and papering and carpeting. Try to avoid the essentials and you risk ruining the effect of the entire room!

Mix and match. The best rule for bedrooms is one print, one blending solid color (shown in gray on the sketches below) and one accent solid color (shown in black).

Usually the lightest color in the print is best for walls, a slightly deeper shade for the carpet. Use a Stay on own side of road at intersections, grade crossings, no-passing zones, on hills and curves. Wait on sidewalk, not in street, for green light or "walk" or gap in traffic where there's no light. While crossing streets don't obscure your view with packages, an umbrella or hat.

LET'S LOOK IT OVER

By Gov. Edward T. Breathitt

FRANKFORT—

Now that the 90th Congress with nine Kentucky members has convened, let us seek to prevent any cutback in Federal matching funds that might cripple the splendid library program we now have under way in our state.

last year, the State department supplied the Carlisle regional system with 1,407 carefully selected books and 125 recordings.

Since 1962, more than 12,000 books have been sent there by the State library department. In the future, you can be sure, additional thousands of books and recordings will be sent to Carlisle both for the headquarters and the five bookmobiles which roam the six-county region.

We must not underestimate the value of our regional library systems, 19 of which will be in operation by next July, for the part they play in the achievement of a better, fuller life for our citizens.

The total annual statewide circulation of books by the department's 104 bookmobiles is nearly five million, a figure which breaks down to an average circulation of nearly 50,000 books each. Twenty small bookmobiles were replaced last year and 10 other replacements have been ordered this year.

Although we got approximately $1.1 million from the Federal government for library services and construction this fiscal year, it was feared until adjournment of the 89th Congress last fall that funds would be cut for Kentucky as well as other states.

The fact that this cut almost occurred makes it highly important that we get to work now to make sure the 90th Congress does not reduce funds.

At a time when the Federal budget exceeds $135 billion, it would be deplorable for Congress to cut needed funds which are so small in comparison with other Federal expenditures.

So, I would suggest that you who are interested in libraries, interested in developing better library programs, write your representatives and senators in Washington to urge them not only to retain the funds but, if at all possible, to increase them for next year.

A challenging devotion on missions was brought by Mrs. James Best of Fulton, in the afternoon. A message in music, "Teach Me to Pray" was by Norman White, Fulton.

Robert Snider, a summer missionary to Panama, now a student at Murray State University, and a member of the Baptist Student Union, was the guest speaker. His missionary message through beautiful colored slides was well presented and enjoyed by all as he told of the project he and nine other summer missionaries were to work on in Panama, the building of a church and witnessing to the people.

The slides took us through various stages of the summer project, interspersed with scenes and people, to the dedication of the church.

Arthur Schnabel said, "The student must know, first of all, that the creator certainly did not have the piano in mind in making the human hand; because the hand is not naturally adapted to the keyboard. In fact, our hands have many shortcomings hard to reconcile with the keyboard."

"The 'symmetrical keyboard' of the CGB Musical System is expressly intended to reconcile the keyboard with the hand."

Dear Jo:

It was nice to hear from you. Good luck to your new plans. Season's Greetings and a very busy and Happy New Year to you and your family.

After I left Fulton I went on to West Virginia, Toronto and New York. Had a nice visit with my sister in Toronto and did the new plays and even got to the opera in New York. The big joke at this end is that I met and said good-bye to my husband at the airport.

He was off to Bogota to a hospital directors' meeting. Then I was plunged head-first in organizing the election of Miss Quito, the first to be elected in nine years. She presided at the December festivities. Very successful, but I lost 12 pounds in the process. Then we had visiting queens from Bolivia, Peru and Panama. Mrs. Panama, the queen's mother, is very charming and has offered to help with the selection of candidates for the next Banana Festival. This is an excellent contact for us in Panama.

Everybody enthusiastic about the proposed trip of Fultonians to Ecuador in June. I am not sure just who was in charge of the program from your end. Would you ask Sonny to get in contact with me so that I can plan their trip with plenty of time. I will handle it directly for Ecuadoriana.

Luvisi Is Star

Readers of the Louisville Courier-Journal, besides having the privilege of reading a good newspaper, can keep up with the fame of native Louisville Lee Luvisi, a superb and talented pianist. We have to keep up with the progress of this outstanding artist for a rather sentimental reason.

When Lee was a very young fellow (14) he came to Fulton to present a concert, being hailed as a "child prodigy," which such experts as Doris Wiley said indeed he was.

In discussing that long ago visit with Bettie Louise Reed, with whom the Luvisis and the late, Dwight Anderson visited while here, Bettie Louise related an incident that proves again the small world department.

Laura Hefley, Bettie Louise's grand-daughter and the daughter of the W. R. Hefleys is a student of music at the University of Louisville. Luvisi is on the staff of the university and will be one of the distinguished artists before whom Laura will perform this month at Gardencourt.

Frankly this is a real treat for Laura, and we would add Luvisi and the others have an even better treat in store for them when they hear Laura at the piano.

Since his days as a child prodigy, Luvisi has been a frequent performer with the Louisville Orchestra.

Once a student in the U.L. School of Music's preparatory department, Luvisi is now artist-in-residence at the school. He is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, where he was a pupil of Rudolf Serkin and Mieczyslaw Horszowski, and was a laureate winner of the 1960 Queen Elizabeth of Belgium International Piano Envious!

The snow on Tuesday made us envious of our friends who are planning visits to sunnier climates before Spring starts bustin' out all over around here. We are particularly thinking of Gertrude Murphy and Clarice Thorpe who will be jetting it out to California soon for a visit with Mrs. Ed Kelly. Mrs. Kelly is the former Mary Farmer of Fulton.

Gertrude took off for Memphis Monday for a few days of shopping in the smart shops that are featuring the "balmy weather" clothes. Even the sight of these ads makes us drool. But then we can't have everything, can we?

Things Are Tough!

Our forefathers did without sugar until the 13th century, without coal fires until the 14th century, without buttered bread until the 15th century, without potatoes until the 16th century, without coffee and tea and soap until the 17th century, without pudding until the 18th century, without gas and matches and electricity until the 19th century, without canned goods until the 20th, and we have had automobiles for only a few years.

Now, what was it you were complaining about?

Annabelle Edwards got a real "boot" out of seeing one of her old friends photographed in a two-page spread of a national magazine. Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Bates of Medusa, New York, whom Annabelle knew when they both lived in Water Valley, Mississippi during the Korean War are breeders of thoroughbred Shetland ponies. Their fame has become nationwide, so a team of New York photographers went to Medusa to do an illustration for a story. Sumner is pictured in True Story magazine enjoying a ride in a surrey with the pony in front and a bride and groom in back.

Vandal Shoots Bald Eagle; Tempers Soar

Conservation-minded folks in the Reelfoot Lake area are aroused. Some vandal killed one of their majestic bald eagles in violation of local, state and national laws.

Efforts were made to save the huge bird but it died Friday night from a heavy lead direct hit.

This majestic national bird has been carelessly or deliberately shot on Reelfoot Lake. The Bald Eagle, protected by federal law, with very distinguishable markings, was nevertheless a horribly direct target for a heavy load of shot.

John Delime, manager of the Reelfoot Federal Refuge, said it appears that the eagle was shot in flight. He said it took pretty heavy shot or close range to inflict as much damage on such a huge and powerful bird. The examining doctor reported at least six points of internal injury beyond repair. There were other external wounds and the large, powerful wing bone was completely broken by shot.

Otis (Red) Boyette called the Federal Refuge office two days after the close of duck season to report what appeared to be a crippled eagle at the lake's edge. Refuge workers, Drew Davis and Jack Clemmons, caught the eagle with a net and John Delime rushed it to a qualified veterinarian in an attempt to save it.

It is no wonder that Mr. Delime and other Refuge personnel and the people in the lake area are aroused by the shooting of this eagle. This is the first incident of its kind in this area. These residents have worked hard to protect and encourage the growing concentration of eagles in the lake area.

According to Mr. Delime, on any federally controlled land an eagle's nest is given absolute sanctuary for at least a quarter of a mile around. On the endangered list, nationwide, there is great concern lest this majestic bird should disappear completely. The bald eagle gets its mature markings in the third year, the white head and tail. They do not breed until they are four years old and the life span can be twenty-five years or more.

Mr. Delime also said that there has only been one other eagle loss reported within the last five years in the lake area and investigation showed it died of poison of a hydrocarbon type pesticide. Our crop chemicals wash into the lake, get into the fish, and an eagle feeding on dead fish may become infected by it, becoming sterile or poisoned. This has been the fate of many of our nation's eagles.

This is the first shooting incident of an eagle being reported to the Reelfoot Federal Refuge office in recent years. Any good hunter should be able to identify the bird he shoots BEFORE he fires. There is no other bird marked like the mature bald eagle and none that has the tremendous wing spread. This bird had a wing span of 71".

He is a huge, powerful bird, but he brings no harm to man and the only reward for a man harming him is a $500 fine or imprisonment. An incident involving the bald eagle should be reported immediately to the nearest conservation officer.

METAL SNOW TREADS ARE NOT PERMITTED IN EVERY STATE

With winter weather crowding in, the snow-tire season is at hand.

Many manufacturers now are offering winter-tread tires with metal spikes. While there is no law in Kentucky against use of such tires, certain states, or jurisdictions, do prohibit their use because of possible road damage.

For this reason, the prudent purchaser would do well to determine carefully where the tires are to be used before equipping his car with metal treads. If he plans to use them in areas outside Kentucky, he should determine in advance whether their use is permitted.

Above all, drive safely. Remember, the life you save is well worth living.

THE BALD EAGLE, protected by local, state and national laws because it has been declared the national bird, was shot during the duck season. The eagle was found dying two days after the season ended and it died Friday night.

County's Winning Soil Conservation Essay

(Ed's Note: The following is the winning essay written by Steve Jones, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Lloyd Jones of Fulton. Steve is a student at Fulton High School.)

SOIL CONSERVATION—Its Effect On My Community by STEVE JONES

We, the people of the United States, are fighting a war—besides the one in Vietnam. The war is not an ordinary one; we are dealing with an omnipresent force, Nature, and the faults of man. Battles are being waged from the Sequoia Forests of California to Niagara Falls, from the desert Southwest to the farms of western Kentucky. It is a war that can be won, but the odds against a quick victory are great.

The problem of our depleted natural resources is one of greatest magnitude and is, in truth, a war—a war which we are losing. Four fifths of our best farmland has been hurt by soil erosion and water waste; probably one-half of the organic matter that made soil fertile and workable for the pioneers has been squandered. Water supplies for our cities are becoming scarce and our frontiers of yesteryear are gone. Our basic livelihood depends upon the ground we walk on and so casually take for granted.

In order to stop this rape of the land we must conserve. Only through conservation can we achieve victory in the destruction of natural resources.

But what is conservation? In the words of John F. Kennedy, "Conservation . . . can be defined as the wise use of our natural environment: It is in the final analysis, the highest form of national thrift—the prevention of waste and despoilment while preserving, improving and renewing the quality and usefulness of all our resources." It is the sum total of everything done to keep soil and water useful to plants, animals and people in sufficient quantities in the right location, at the right time.

There are many soil conservation problems. The depletion of the soils, crop producing value, erosion and loss of topsoil due to flooding are a few of the major problems. Someone once said, "Soil is like a bank account. Keep borrowing from it, never repaying, and pretty soon the land is flat broke." Every harvest of grain, vegetables and fruit takes something away—moisture, minerals, physical structure—something that affects the soil's ability to produce. If these elements are not restored, then the soil and its owners are headed for bankruptcy.

Farmers now recognize the need for building up the soil. Probably the most common soil management work is the use of fertilizers—another way of resting soils is to rotate crops—alternating crops year after year to prevent soil depletion by overplanting. By planning ahead and using the soil to its best advantage the farmer will have increased yields and less problems.

Probably one of the most tragic wastes of soil is by erosion. From an airplane, land erosion looks similar to a creeping scarring disease. Like any disease, though, it is easier to prevent than to cure. Through use of conservation methods such as cover crops, contour farming and planting hillsides and roadbanks, the disease can be checked. Remedies for existing gullies often tax the combined skills and knowledge of several types of soil, water, plant and engineering specialists can be expensive and difficult projects. It is foolish to let erosion take over our land when the "ounce of prevention" can mean a "pound of cure."

More often than not, when soil is conserved, so is water. Good soil is like a sponge. All together there is probably more water held in the American soil than the combined capacity of all our lakes and reservoirs. Therefore, the best way to protect our water supplies is to take good care of the soil.

In order to stop the wanton neglect of our resources, the United States government has set up conservation agencies: the state of Kentucky also incorporated a conservation system to aid the farmers and people of Kentucky in the fight against soil and water depletion.

The Fulton County Soil Conservation District was organized in 1949 with the responsibility of developing and carrying out a soil conservation program with the assistance of all technical agencies working in the field of conservation.

The duties of our local conservation officers are complex. They assist 350 to 500 farmers in planning, applying and maintaining soil and water conservation practices on their farms. They determine the needs and feasibility of conservation practices and make recommendations on fertilizers, cover crops and other farm programs. Local conservation workers and members of related agencies have made great progress in the person to person campaign for effective, profitable farms through conservation.

One example of the Conservation Service's program and accomplishments is the Harris Fork Watershed Project outside of Fulton. Built less than five years ago, it has completely stopped the damaging floods of past years. This major, local conservation project exemplifies the significance and success of conservation programs in our area and is indicative of the success of conservation programs all over the state and country.

It has taken us a long time to face facts, but we must conserve what is already lost and protect what we have from destruction. The road to effective conservation is long, but it is not hard. With the help of every man, woman and child, in every way of life, the goal can be achieved—a better tomorrow through conservation planning. To again quote the late President Kennedy: " . . . we must expand the concept of conservation to meet the imperious problems of the new age. We . . . must make sure that the national estate we pass on to our multiplying descendants is green and flourishing." It is our challenge. We must take it—and succeed.

National honors and $500 college scholarships have been awarded to three members of the Kentucky delegation to the National 4-H Club Congress held recently in Chicago at the Conrad Hilton, the world's largest hotel.

Eugene Curl, 17, of Franklin, took his honors in the Westinghouse Electric Corporation electric program. Frances Owen, 17, of Hardinsburg, was a winner in The Sears-Roebuck Foundation leadership program. Troy Costello, 18, of Russellville, won in the tractor program sponsored by the Standard Oil Company (Kentucky).

The three had previously been named 1966 state award winners. Their 4-H records were judged for national awards by the Cooperative Extension Service, which supervises 4-H Club work. The judging took place in Chicago at the headquarters of the National 4-H Service Committee, just prior to the congress.

A total of 234 national 4-H award winners, representing 47 states and Puerto Rico, were announced during the congress.

Record Number of Farmers

Attend Farm Management School
The 1967 Obion County Farm Management School started in a big way last week when 180 Obion County farm people attended the first session. Ninety-eight farmers paid enrollment fees during the first meeting to attend the eight sessions of the school. This is, by far, the largest crowd ever to attend a first session of the school and the largest enrollment at the first session of the school.

Next Monday night, January 23, the school will be on grain drying and storage. Gene DeBuck, Agricultural Engineer from University of Tennessee will be the instructor, assisted by James Neely from TVA and Floyd Roberts from Gibson County Electric Co-op. If you are not already attending the Farm Management School, start attending any Monday night at Obion County Central High School cafeteria.

Like To Know More

If you would like to know more about growing vegetables, we would suggest you attend a course of vegetable production to be held at Milan. The course will be held at the Buford Ellington 4-H Center and will run from January 23 to 27. All vegetables that we grow in this area will be discussed and the week long course will include all phases of production.

PICK YOUR HEARING AID WITH CARE AND CAUTION

If your hearing is impaired, a hearing aid may be a great help to you, but complaints from dissatisfied customers who believe they have been taken advantage of prompts the Consumer Protection Division to set forth the advice one physician gives his patients.

"If a hearing aid is considered advisable, obtain one on a trial basis with the specific understanding that if it does not help the patient it can be returned and only a small amount be paid for making the ear mold, or rental for the time used. If the dealer declines, go to another dealer."

Where a hearing aid may be indicated for both ears, obtain only one at a time and under the same arrangement.

This may save you hundreds of dollars: Seeing is believing, but hearing is understanding.

The Parson Speaks

GOD IS DEAD

God is dead. They buried Him. When they speak of Him, their voices are hollow as though echoing from his tomb. He should be left in peace and we should go our way and forget. For He is dead. His burial place is far away in distant fields of childhood and make-believe.

There are 80,000,000 Americans for whom God is dead. They have no religious affiliation. They have gone their way and left God buried long ago. They held no formal funeral rites. But simply, they left behind His image in their lives, and one day followed another in which they never thought of Him. That was long ago in the green fields of Spring when last they remember that He was real and alive.

There are some locally who have buried God. Maybe you, who are now reading this, have a patch of your past where you have laid Him to rest from which you have walked, forgetting. Maybe you "could care less." Or maybe you do profess the Living God, but pray as though you were visiting His grave. Maybe you call yourself a believer, because it is more popular and to call yourself an atheist takes courage and creates controversy. But in reality, your God is not among the living. He is dead.

Can we live as though God were dead? The living must have a God of life—all life yours and mine. The dynamics of evolution are the unfolding of His urgent design at the heart of matter. His are the seasons of life and rest, sleep and awakening. The depths are His and the spaces beyond. It is He who has enlivened with flame the heart of man to know and seek, and fired his curiosity to scale the heights of probing and descend the elements of matter 'til the atom appears. He is the God of eyes, dazzled with the pastels of sea and sky, frenzied with the wild playfulness of evening's red and golds. He is the God of design. Snow flake and mountain are His. The swing of unbound stars is his fascinating toy, and the atom's fire, a candle that casts the playful shadow of His hand. He is the God of Life. The last pant of the dying robin is his and mother's love eternally new.

Can you live and LIFE be dead. It is not God who is dead. It is the 80,000,000 who await their burial in the tomb of time, without LIFE.

— Rev. Gerald Glahn

Annual Baptist Men's Day Set For January 22

Thousands of churches throughout Kentucky and the Southern Baptist Convention will turn their attention to missions on Sunday, January 22, particularly the involvement of men in missions.

The occasion is Baptist Men's Day, now in its 37th year as an annual observance. It is sponsored by the Brotherhood Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention and locally the Brotherhood Department of the Kentucky Baptist Convention.

Between 15,000 and 20,000 men in some 1,100 churches in Kentucky are expected to take part in this event emphasizing missionary education. For example, missions may be the topic for discussion at the prayer meeting on Wednesday preceding the Baptist Men's Day, or a fellowship meal with a mission speaker may be held one night. Some churches will conduct a retreat so that members may consider in depth the subject "The Family Witnessing."

Many churches are expected to conduct a prayer breakfast on Sunday morning using recorded messages by the executive secretaries of the Home and Foreign Boards and the Brotherhood Commission from a packet of materials provided for their use. Laymen and pastors will bring messages on missions and involvement of men at the morning worship service.

Mr. Forrest Sawyer, Secretary of the Brotherhood Department of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, says that while many of the Baptist churches in Kentucky will observe Baptist Men's Day on January 22, others will choose a day more convenient for their own program. Thus, many churches will be involved in this emphasis during the latter part of January and early February.

His criticism of the Soviet government. He described the Spanish Inquisition as "boys' play compared to the killing of the Soviet regime." "What moral justification can there be for the United States' cultivation of the Russian Communists in the light of such legalized butchery?"

3. "West Germany Favors Strict Law"

At a time when liberal churchmen in the United States are advocating sexual freedom and the removal of the moral stigma of fornication and adultery, it is refreshing to read in a dispatch from Bonn, Germany that nearly 75 percent of West Germany's people want to retain a law, a seldom invoked law for adultery, according to a public opinion poll which was recently taken there. This confirms what many of us have felt, that the people themselves have a higher moral standard and deeper loyalty to God's Word than do the liberal clergy. It is also a testimony to the moral principles of the people of West Germany.

MONSIGNOR HERRIGAN ON OPEN HOUSING

The Right Reverend Alfred F. Herrigan, President of Bellarmine College has been in the forefront of the movement to adopt a law for compulsion in the sale of housing in Louisville and Jefferson County. It is interesting to notice in a dispatch which we found in our files from the Louisville Times, Saturday, May 14, 1966, Msgr. Herrigan is quoted as saying he wished somebody would complain about racial discrimination in the sale and rental of housing in Louisville.

He said: "A thousand laws aren't going to be of any use to us if the people are unwilling or unable to file complaints. We can't establish that there are Negro purchasers who are not being allowed to buy or rent in certain areas."

Is it not amazing that this movement could have such persistent support by "leading figures in Louisville" when they were unable to obtain from any segment of the Negro community any serious complaint of discrimination? This is indicative of how the liberal mind works, and should be ample evidence that the law is neither desirable nor necessary in Louisville.

Worship at the Church of your Choice

"If there's one God, why are there so many religions?"

That's a question that has plagued thoughtful people for centuries.

Religions often have seemed to divide men rather than join them—which could hardly be God's will.

In our time, so full of wonders, we're witnessing what may be the greatest wonder of all: the growing force of inter-faith understanding. It seems to promise a fuller flowering of God's hopes for man. You and me.

Great new things are happening in churches and synagogues these days. But find out for yourself. This week.

Then take your strengthened faith out into the world—and put it to work.

Whitaker Shows How To Figure Medicare Plan

Charles Whitaker, Paducah social security district manager, today reminded Medicare eligibles not to overlook a special rule in figuring when they will meet the annual $50 medical insurance deductible.

The current medical insurance benefit year, Whitaker said, began January 1st and will continue through December 31, 1967. Generally, he explained, the 1967 deductible will have to be met with the first $50 in expenses for covered services that were furnished in 1967. Under the special rule, however, expenses incurred late in 1966 may be counted toward the 1967 deductible.

Whitaker cited two situations in which an enrollee will benefit from the special rule:

SITUATION NO. 1

If any enrollee had less than $50 in covered expenses during 1966, the amount of any such expenses for services furnished him during October, November, and December 1966 is allowed toward his $50 1967 deductible.

Example: Mr. A. paid a total of $48 for covered services in 1966 — $12 for services in September, and $36 for services in October. Mr. A. paid the $48 bill in November. Toward his deductible for 1967, Mr. A. may use the $36 expenses for services received in October but he cannot use the other $12. Though the entire bill was paid during the last three months only $36 was for services received by him during the last three months.

SITUATION NO. 2

If an enrollee's expenses for covered services in 1966 did not exceed $50 until after September, expenses for services received during the last three months, that were used to meet the 1966 deductible, may be used again toward the 1967 deductible.

Example: Mr. K. had a total of $115 expenses for covered services in 1966 — $15 was for his doctor's visits during August, and $100 for an operation in November.

The first $50 (the $15 for August and $35 of the $100 for November) must be used toward the 1966 deductible. Mr. K. filed a claim in November and was paid for 80 per cent of the expenses over this first $50.

Now he may re-use the $35 expenses for November toward his 1967 deductible since this was the amount of the expenses for services during the last three months that was used to meet his 1966 deductible.

Example: Mrs. W. had no covered medical insurance expenses in 1966 until December. During December her doctor bills and laboratory tests amounted to $165. She claimed benefits and was paid 80 per cent of the amount over her $50 deductible.

Enrollees whose full deductible for 1966 was met with expenses for services received prior to October are not benefited by the special rule, Whitaker stated.

Medicare eligibles, Whitaker said, may receive help with their claims at the District Social Security Office, 112 South Tenth Street, Paducah, Kentucky. The Paducah office remains open until 8:00 p.m. each Thursday.

Coveted Seat Goes To Cooper

WASHINGTON — Sen. John Sherman Cooper finally has won a long-sought place on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Republican Committee on Committees said Thursday.

The Kentuckian, former ambassador to India, long has been considered a natural for foreign relations.

But he had to wait until he accumulated enough seniority to win the post.

A GOP vacancy occurred this year because the committee's ratio was changed from a 13-6 Democratic majority to 12-7 to reflect the greater Republican strength in the Senate.

Other committee changes announced by Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., included addition of Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., to District of Columbia committee and departure of Cooper from the agriculture committee.

No Change Yet In Campaign Role Of Combs

FRANKFORT — With a nomination by President Johnson for a post on the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in his hip pocket, former Gov. Bert T. Combs is still deeply involved in Kentucky politics — at least temporarily.

The announcement, made Friday in Washington, answered one of Kentucky's major political questions of 1966. Would Combs run for governor again on the Democratic ticket? But it also raised another question.

What about Combs' involvement as co-chairman of former Highway Commissioner Henry Ward's campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor?

That question was answered too, by a spokesman at Ward headquarters.

Foster Ockerman, who is campaign co-chairman with Combs, said Friday that the campaign has been planned around the possibility that Combs might be appointed to the bench.

Ockerman said the appointment will have no immediate effect on the campaign organization.

"There is no immediate effect on the campaign," Ockerman said. "It takes at least a month for the Senate to go through the procedure of confirming a federal judge. So there is some time."

An aide to Ockerman said discussions will be held to determine whether Ward will find a replacement as co-chairman, or whether Ockerman will direct the campaign alone.

The judgeship wheels began grinding in 1966 when Combs expressed an interest and the Kentucky congressional delegation eventually lined up behind him.

The American Bar Association gave an excellent report on

IC Building Cars To Handle Pulpwood

One thousand 70-ton pulpwood cars are being constructed by the Illinois Central Railroad to handle increased volume of forestry products, William B. Johnson, president, has announced.

The new equipment will be assigned to the movement of pulpwood logs directed to paper and wood products industries in Mississippi and Louisiana.

The cars, costing about $8 million, are being built in the Illinois Central's car building shops at Centralia, Ill. Completion is scheduled for April, 1967.

The Illinois Central freight car program for 1967 totals approximately $52 million for 4,575 freight cars of various types.

You have to see this one to really believe it! Bill has a turquoise and white OLDSMOBILE, 60 model, 4 dr. hardtop, power brakes and steering, auto. trans., is local and sharp! New tires, too!

Combs Nominated By Johnson For Post As Appellate Judge

FRANKFORT — Former Gov. Bert Combs, who turned down an opportunity to run again, was nominated by President Johnson Friday for a post on the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati.

Combs, 55, was on a hunting trip in Southeastern Kentucky with one of his brothers and could not be reached for comment.

Working For Ward

But Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, who owes his success to Combs, commented:

"I'm very happy for him. I think he'll make an outstanding judge."

Months ago Combs announced he would not run again and became co-chairman of the campaign to nominate Henry Ward for governor on the Democratic ticket.

Since two or three months may elapse before the Senate considers Combs' nomination, he presumably can continue to help Ward, along with co-chairman Foster Ockerman of Lexington.

The judgeship pays about $33,000 a year, carries more prestige than the district posts in Kentucky, and occasionally has been the path to a U.S. Supreme Court appointment.

Combs is a handsome, gray-haired man with a modest manner and very sense of humor.

As governor from 1959 to 1963, he initiated numerous new programs in practically every field of state government and remained embroiled in the process with Democratic factional enemies, especially Chandler and former Gov. Earle Clements.

Disregarding almost every one's advice, Combs chose Breathitt, an obscure state official, to battle Chandler, then seeking a third term. His hunch paid off.

Combs would replace the late Shackelford Miller Jr., who lived at Louisville and commuted to Cincinnati. Combs now practices law at Lexington.

There was endless speculation earlier last year on whether Combs would seek Democratic nomination again or accept nomination as a judge. He insisted the two were not connected in any way in his plans.

Combs was a Court of Appeals judge and resigned to make an unsuccessful race for governor in 1955 against A. B. Chandler. In 1959 he defeated Harry Lee Waterfield in the Democratic primary.

Combs was born at Manchester er in Clay County and later lived at Prestonsburg.

He volunteered for the Army during World War II, entering as a private and emerging as a captain in the War Crimes Department on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff.

He is a Baptist, attended Cumberland College and then was graduated from the University of Kentucky Law School as an honor student.

South Fulton Bows To UC

Neither the Union City Golden Tornadoes nor the Lady Tornadoes were up to par but the South Fulton Devils and Devilettes also were less than sensational in a basketball doubleheader in the Union City gymnasium Friday night.

The Tornadoes fought off repeated rallies by the Devils in the second half to win 64-52 after the Lady Tornadoes had snatched a hard-earned 48-42 triumph.

Danny Ladd tallied 17 points to pace the Tornadoes to their 13th victory in 17 starts. Richard Fowler was close behind with 15, Donnie Jones posted 13 and Jimmy Potts had a dozen.

The game's top scorer, however, was Red Devil sharpshooter Allen Ingram who amassed 22 for the night. Lee Ingram collected 10.

The Tornadoes raced out to a 19-11 first period lead and South Fulton, despite coming close, never managed to catch up again. It was 27-19 at half-time but the Red Devils opened up in the third stanza and trailed by only four, 40-36, as the final eight minutes began.

Twice during the first three minutes of the last quarter, South Fulton pulled to within two points of the Tornadoes—42-40 and 44-42—but each time Union City pulled away again. Fowler had nine of his 15 points in that final stanza to play a major role in standing off the charging Red Devils.

Connie Roberts tallied 17 points, Sonnie Harris had 11 and Karen Moss 10 to lead the Lady Tornadoes to their triumph. Pat Hamilton garnered 18 and June Vetter 14 to pace the Devilettes. Union City led 14-6, 25-20 and 36-32 at the quarter poles.

Nurses Seeking More Pay

Public health nurses in Western Kentucky have launched a campaign for higher pay.

Nurses in nine counties say they want their salaries increased from the present $400 to $541 a month.

All but one county, they said in a news release, have rejected the request. The one county, not identified, offered a $51 increase.

Local governments aren't providing enough support for public health programs, said the nurses.

The state provides 60 to 70 per cent of the support for local health programs. Nurses are employed by county health departments to care for medically indigent people, give health tests to children in public schools and carry out other public health tasks.

Murray Plant Tests

MURRAY, Ky. — James L. Johnson, executive secretary of the Murray Chamber of Commerce, Monday said engineering on two proposed Calloway County plants is "progressing right on schedule."

Johnson said, "We are extremely well pleased with the progress that has been made in the engineering studies for the Eli Lilly Co. and on the developments that have occurred in the structuring of General Carbon and Graphite Corp. While the studies and planning for both plants are extremely complex, the developments are taking place as planned, he added.

The first three strata wells have been completed, and the quality well drilling started on Jan. 5 as planned. The first three drillings were conducted to bedrock to determine the extent and quality of the water-bearing McNary sands. These have been determined to be excellent. The fourth well will be cased and pumped to determine quantity and quality of the water in the sands.

Johnson was highly complimentary of the engineering staff and drill crew of Layne-Central, Inc., the company employed to make the water tests. He also said that survey crews were now at work determining boundary lines and topography of the sites.

Johnson said that the formation of General Carbon and Graphite Co. was progressing at a rapid pace, with engineering of the actual plant being conducted at the same time. Site studies are being made in several locations.

In other chamber action, the board of directors have instituted proceedings to increase and equalize the dues structure of its membership.

According to the directors the extremely rapid growth in scope and size of chamber activities has forced it to increase the budget requirements.

Chamber of Commerce inquiries from industry, tourists and commercial researchers have increased over 400 per cent in the past three years, and are expected to double in 1967-68, it was reported.

The chamber has been forced to seek larger quarters three times in five years. Printed materials now require almost as much space as was required for the entire office in 1959.

James Garrison, chamber president, said, "As the front door to Murray, Calloway County and the lakes area, we must be prepared to present the best possible image at all times. We must continually carry on a complete and responsible statistical research program. The scope of chamber activities have been enlarged to such an extent that it can now be classified as one of the largest and most important business operations in the country. The investment made by county business people in chamber activities has been the best investment made to date. We know they will continue that support in order to keep the community listed in one of the best possible locations for living, working and playing."

Easy To Move

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. — Phil Balyear bought an old empty safe in a building which was being torn down here. He and two helpers were able to get the 850-pound safe out to the sidewalk, but they could not lift it into a truck. They went down the street for help. When they returned, the safe was gone.

Japan In Market For Hand Tools

TOKYO—Japan spends some $12 million a year for industrial hand tools, and this market is rapidly expanding. In demand are such products as air wrenches, torque-control wrenches, electric and pneumatic drills, pavement breakers, chain saws, fastening tools and ultrasonic processing equipment.

'Alumni' Of Ward 'School' Plan Louisville Program

DANVILLE, Ky.

"Alumni" of the Henry Ward "School" — people who have worked with Ward in Kentucky programs and projects and in the newspaper business — will meet in Louisville Jan. 21 to honor their old boss.

Ward, a Paducah native, former newspaperman, and highway commissioner for the past six years, resigned recently to run for the Democratic nomination as governor.

Main speaker for the dinner will be Creed C. Black, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, who began his newspaper career under Ward shortly before World War II.

Black also will address a session of the Kentucky Press Association which will meet in Louisville on the week end of Jan. 21.

Members of the "club" are being contacted by a committee headed by Bruce Montgomery, Danville, who worked with Ward in state park programs when Ward was state conservation commissioner.

Montgomery said Kentuckians automatically become members of the club when they have succeeded in equaling Ward's energetic drive to accomplish goals.

"Then you are initiated," Montgomery said.

He called it a "tough school" but he added that the rewards — a feeling of accomplishing something of importance to Kentucky — are worth the effort.

"That is why we feel this strong pride in working with Henry Ward," Montgomery said. "And that is why we are going to get together at the Sheraton Hotel in Louisville on January 21 to eat lunch with Henry."

Aiken Objects To Closing Of Post Offices

WASHINGTON — Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., says he is disturbed by proposals to close rural post offices. Aiken said in a letter to Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien that the closing of 1,000 rural offices would save only enough money to buy one warplane.

For soft bread crumbs use fresh bread. Working with two or three slices at a time, remove the crusts. Cut soft centers into match-like sticks. With fingers, tear strips into coarse crumbs. Two slices torn and lightly packed make one cup of crumbs.
